PRESIDENT: Any closing, Senator Johnson?

SENATOR R. JOHNSON: Just briefly, Mr. President, I would just urge the body to move the bill over to the Ag Committee. As I said, this will be the last referencing fight I think we will have between the two committees because of the restructuring. The Natural Resources Committee now will probably take up all of the environmental issues dealing with wind, air, soil, whatever, and I think Senator Sieck indicated he can live with wherever the bill ends up and I can stand it as well, but I just raise the point of consistency which does not seem to be here this year considering we did have on other issues dealing with nitrates and water contaminates were sent to the Ag Committee last year, this year the bills along those lines have been sent to the Public Works Committee. Last year we had a soil and sediment erosion bill. As I said, it was sent to the Ag Committee. Now it is sent to Public Works Committee. I don't know where the carryover is or where I am missing some points, but in this particular case, I think the body should do what they think is right but I am just asking for some consistency.
